

Severe Weather Emergency Protocol activated

Our Severe Weather Emergency Protocol (SWEP) has been activated today (Thursday 17 January) due to the drop-in temperatures forecasted by the Met Office. This is for anyone sleeping rough in the districts.

The trigger for activating the protocol is when a “it feels like 0 degrees” temperature is forecast by the Met Office, taking windchill into account. (This is lower than the previous trigger when the Met Office forecast two consecutive nights would be 0 degree Celsius or below).

If you are aware of anyone who is rough sleeping across the districts please share this information with them and ask them to call our Housing Solution Team on 0300 1234 000 as soon as possible to speak to one of our advisors.

Severe Weather Emergency Protocol activated

Our Severe Weather Emergency Protocol (SWEP) has been activated today (Thursday 17 January) due to the drop-in temperatures forecasted by the Met Office. This is for anyone sleeping rough in the districts.

The trigger for activating the protocol is when a “it feels like 0 degrees” temperature is forecast by the Met Office, taking windchill into account. (This is lower than the previous trigger when the Met Office forecast two consecutive nights would be 0 degree Celsius or below).

If you are aware of anyone who is rough sleeping across the districts please share this information with them and ask them to call our Housing Solution Team on 0300 1234 000 as soon as possible to speak to one of our advisors.